SNOW REMOVAL PROGRAM MEANS LOT TO PROVINCE

Welcome news to the motoring public of Alberta, to farmers and others is found in the announcement that the provincial government intends to increase its snow clearing program this winter.
The intention is to operate snow plows over 1,680 miles of Alberta highways, as compared with 1,200 miles covered in last year's program.
Through the purchase of three new snow-trucks for snow removal purposes, the Department of Public Works is enabled to extend its program. These trucks have improved apparatus which, it is believed, will make it possible to cover a greater mileage than hitherto, the plow points in particular being one of the improvements.
Three old snow plows were turned into the factory by the Public Works Department under the deal by which the new equipment was acquired.
The snow clearing program comprises 443 miles of highways in the Calgary district, 496 in the Edmonton area, 359 miles in southern Alberta to be covered from headquarters at Macleod, and 582 miles in what is described as the Red Deer area.
Need of extending the snow clearing program, particularly in the interests of motoring and also to serve the marketing requirements of farmers and other producers, has long been urged by the Alberta Motor Association.
The A.M.A. also has taken up at times the question of the wide benches, sleighs, so that sleighs and cars would both be able to operate over the roads in winter.
Carbon school will re-open on Monday, January 4th.
A watch night service will be held in the Anglican church on Thursday at 11:30 p.m. Everybody welcome.

CARBON WINS HOCKEY GAME FROM HESKETH

In a hockey game played on the Carbon ice on Sunday, December 27, the Carbon team emerged victors over Hesketh by an 8-4 score.
The individual stars of the game were George Appleby for Hesketh who scored four goals and Francis Foxon for Carbon who also netted the puck four times.
Linesups were as follows:
Hesketh—Jack Appleby, Joe Appleby, O. Gaskin, J. Bacon, G. Appleby, D. Paleon, J. Barber, R. Paleon, G. Semler and H. Edwards.
Carbon—R. Lemay, C. Reed, G. Ives, J. Mathers, B. Oulphant, N. Nash, P. Foxon, S. Malton and W. Skerry.

FOSTER GIVES ASSURANCE OF SEED GRAIN AND FEED

There has been some anxiety felt by farmers in this district regarding seed and feed situation due to the bad damage last summer, and as a result a delegation of farmers comprising Messrs. Art Hudson, Chas. Gayman and Frank Reddy went up to Three Hills a week or so ago to interview E.P. Foster, M.L.A.
Mr. Foster assured the delegation that he would use his influence and that he would bring up the matter at the first session of the legislature in the new year, in an effort to have the needs of the constituency cared for.
In the meantime the Gamble Social Credit Group are planning to take up the matter at their next meeting on January 13th, at which time it is intended to pass a resolution asking the Government to supply seed grain and feed wherever necessary in this constituency.

300,000 MAY NEED RELIEF

OTTAWA—Drought formed another black picture on Monday as the board of governors of the Canadian Welfare Board forecast possibility 300,000 persons in the sun-burned areas of the prairies may need public relief this winter.
In its annual statement on the relief outlook the board declared economic recovery evidence during the year was not accompanied by lessened unemployment. It said the year ended of unemployed on relief will be six to eight per cent higher than the 1935 year end total.
Later when deficiency rises in the midwest the figure may grow to as much as 12 per cent higher, it added.

FORD, PATENTS, NEW DESIGN

WASHINGTON—A patent office of field reported Monday a patent for a new automobile design, embodying an engine mounted in the rear, was granted to Henry Ford. Ford did not say in his application what use might be made of the new design.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The editor received a letter this week with one of the usual "allow me space in your valuable paper" beginnings. The letter was in appreciation of the splendid White Gift Service at the Anglican Church on December 21, but owing to the fact that the account of the undertaking required five letter size sheets of paper closely written thereon, we could not find space to print it. However, if our correspondent will take the trouble to re-write the account in three or four hundred words, we would be pleased to publish it.

REPORT OF GRAIN SITUATION IN THE ARGENTINE

An estimate of 228,834,000 bushels has been given as the probable yield of the Argentine wheat crop this year by the correspondent of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in Buenos Aires. This is the same as about the month of November and though the forecast of average has been slightly increased he believes that there will be no great increase in the yield.

The average figures as issued by the Argentine government totalled 17,495,000 acres as compared with an earlier estimate of 16,802,000 acres. The estimate of the yield as furnished by the Canadian correspondent at Buenos Aires is 194 bushels on the seeded acreage which compares with an average for the last eleven years of 12 bushels per acre on the area seeded.

A yield of 228,834,000 bushels would give a surplus for export of around 147 million bushels after deducting 85,000,000 bushels for domestic consumption and seed.
As at the 1st of December the balance of wheat in the Argentine available for export was only 9,535,000 bushels.

Commenting on the government's announced intention to eliminate the minimum price for wheat the Canadian correspondent mentions that the ministry stated the grain control board will maintain with an annual reserve of funds so that in the case of emergency it will be ready to take any action that may be deemed necessary.

CANADA HAS OVER 1,300 SMALL BORE RIFLE CLUBS

Over 1,300 small bore rifle clubs with a total membership of over 11,000 Canadian youths have been formed in Canada since June 1935. In that month Dominion Marksmen, which previously had concerned itself only with experienced marksmen and cadet corps, turned its attention to young owners of 22 sporting rifles who hitherto had been in the habit of shooting aimlessly in the fields and woods. To date these newly organized clubs have won over 4,475 awards of different kinds and plans are afoot

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

H.G.L. Strange
Some countries have so many people that they cannot grow enough wheat for all.
Some countries have so much land and so few people that they have wheat to sell.
Those nations which are obliged to buy wheat are called "Wheat Importing Countries," while those with wheat to sell are called "Wheat Exporting Countries."
About 550 million bushels of wheat this year, it is expected, will be purchased by the importing countries from the exporting countries.
This amount of 550 million bushels is about 10% of the world's annual production.
Canada is the largest wheat exporting country, selling Overseas annually a little more than 200 million bushels. Great Britain is the largest importing country, buying about 190 million bushels each year.

The wheat grown on our Canadian Prairies finally travels abroad to some 72 different countries. It would be an interesting exercise if boys and girls would make a list—then mark them in a map—of the 72 foreign countries which buy the wheat their parents and neighbors grow.
It would be still more interesting if in addition students would note the products or goods which each of these foreign countries sells to Canada and to other nations, which sales enable them to purchase Canadian wheat.

Prices have tended to be raised by the following:
Germany alarmed about possible food shortage—Bromhall increases estimates World import wheat requirements from 540 to 568 million, which will leave only about $4 million in surplus for August 1st next.
Italy buying wheat steadily from Argentina and Danubian countries—Rains and reports of frost in Argentina during harvest cause uncertainty about yield.

Prices have tended to be lowered by the following:
U.S.A. official estimate winter wheat and rye sowings larger than last year—Germany requires millers extract larger percentage of flour from wheat—Demand for wheat from Great Britain falling off as price increases—Weekly shipments of Canadian wheat show slight decline—Crop prospects in Italy improved—India receives good rains for germination.

The editor of this paper has made arrangements with Mr. Strange by which he will correct and return any lists prepared by school students, and sent into him before Feb. 1st. Mr. Strange informs us that he would be glad to give a small prize for the nearest and most accurate list sent to him.
Ready underway to bring together some of the best of these young sporting shots by means of inter-town shooting matches.—The C.I.L. Oval.

A. M. A. PROTESTS SEVERE ACTION OF B. C. POLICE

Steps which it is hoped will result in a relaxing of severe checks imposed by British Columbia police of motorists from Alberta, have been initiated by the Alberta Motor Association.

THE CARBON SCHOOL CHRISTMAS CONCERT

The annual Christmas concert of the Carbon school was put on in the Farmers' Exchange hall on the evening of Wednesday, December 23rd and a large crowd turned out for the program, which consisted of the following numbers:

"O Canada," sung by everybody.
A Musical Cantata, "In Thyland," by the Primary room.

A Flag Drill—by pupils of Junior room.
A Musical Play in two acts, "The Girl Who Had No Birthday," by pupils of Junior room.

Pointillista Drill—by girls of senior room.

After the above number the drawing for the Club prizes was conducted. Dick Appleby winning the toilet set; Mrs. C.L. MacGregor, the comforter; and Bob Hutton of Calgary the clock.

The final number on the program was a two-act play, "Christmas at the Stubbinses," by the pupils of the school.

Charlie Smith played the part of Santa Claus and presents were distributed to the school children, while every child present was given a bag of candy and nuts, etc.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Hay of Sylvan Lake arrived in Carbon on Wednesday and spent the holiday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Len Hay.

Many complaints made to the Calgary branch of the A.M.A. resulted in that body passing a resolution at its annual meeting in the calling for remedial action in this was given full endorsement when the resolution was confirmed at the annual sessions of the provincial motor club organization held subsequently at Edmonton. The complaints referred mainly to severe police check-ups in the Crow's Nest Pass area. In addition it was reported that the B.C. authorities appeared to be enforcing regulations to require visiting motorists to buy B.C. car licenses for harsh and unjustifiable reasons.

In protesting against the actions of the B.C. authorities, the A.M.A. proposes to have the situation complained of made the subject of full investigation with a view to having motor travel throughout Canada made as free of restrictions as possible.

Feeling of the A.M.A. is that any unnecessary interference with motorists in travelling from one province to another is detrimental to public good. Now that government and private enterprise realize that great value is found in open highways for marketing public, it is believed that action which would curtail desirable travel should be completely avoided by police or other authorities.

Starr's eyes dropped, and a faint flush touched her cheeks.

"It—it—Oh, I mean it all seems so—rather cold-blooded, Lance—the whole arrangement you are proposing."

"I've always thought that—well, that love ought to have something to do with it."

"I teach you to love me, Starr!" he said eagerly, as his hand crushed her slight fingers until she winced as the antique Egyptian ring pressed into the tender flesh.

She glanced up into his anxious eyes, shook her head a little, and there was a far-away expression on her face.

"I wonder," she said softly, "I wonder if I ever will love you like really is... I don't know."

He laughed a little shortly. "And I don't know why I'm mad about you but I am."

Starr's black eyes twinkled. "Shall I tell you?" It became I'm probably the first woman on whom you've set your determination to possess who didn't fall for you the first minute you snatched your fingers."

Lance's arm slid around her, and he bent over to kiss her.

"You will fall for me, young lady!" he laughed confidently, even a little arrogantly. "You don't know how I get really started."

"I know you have a good line," Starr smiled, and Lance nodded.

"Quite so," he remarked. "That's what I've been told. Properly heated, but never hard-boiled."

Baffled was not enough for Lance Marlows. He had been looking quickly got to the point of pressing his questionable suit with Starr. And then she suddenly realized—how it had come about she did not know, but she had given Lance Marlows her promise to give him his answer that night. At whatever price she wanted, she were to attend. Starr didn't trouble to ask where it would be. The answer was paraded in her mind, could keep moving and have no chance to think.

If she accepted him in the sense he wanted to be accepted, she was to wear his bracelet, and then he would know. He would know that she was pledged to him, was willing to let his current light's love.

She was still waiting for time, a little frightened, but with a certain eagerness. At last she told him, rather shyly, trying to recapture a fragment of her daring "Play-Girl" courage.

"A bride is allowed time to arrange her trousseau, Lance. Hm, a mere mistress the same thing."

"All right, Starr. If she can make it snappy."

She wished he wouldn't talk quite so much. She wanted to think, a chance to be quiet. As greatly as he had wanted him to come to relieve her loneliness, now she wanted to go away, so that she could try to figure it all out. And her brain was suddenly so racked from too much thinking!

Finally Lance, too, got restless, and suggested a walk in the park. Starr to Starr far more than just sitting here in this quiet room, tea-table with the man whom it might be she would see far more than she cared to see. She jumped to her feet.

"Be with you in a minute, old thing," she said gaily. "As quickly as I can slip into something that will not cause so much comment on the avenue as this might."

It was a golden afternoon when they started out in Lance's expensive car, though growing a little late. The sky was still lapis lazuli.

There was a touch of autumn haze about the smell of autumn. I am driving up there, which somehow manages to make its way into the streets of New York in spite of the skyscrapers and lack of trees. Lance drove across town and they turned into the Park. He drove aimlessly. "Because this strange—'play-girl' had told him as soon as she smuggled down behind him that she wanted to be very quiet, so she'd think over her affairs."

She was thinking. There must be a little peace somewhere in the world, if he could only find it. Did it lie with Lance?

After all, why not let Lance prove a guide, luxurious setting for the rest of her short days? It was the easiest way. Life surely died too much, after the shabby deal it had handed her.

Marriage with Michael would have been cheating. But she would not be cheating Lance. She had plenty to offer him in return for anything he offered her. Lance did not want a wife, nor a home. All he wanted was a scintillating mistress, one who would make him the envy of his fellows. Well, she could be that to him. In a few months he would be tired of her, just as he had tired of his other flames. . . . All right. In a month or two it would be over. Starr was mindful of the whimsical words she had spoken to colored Sappho.

A puff of wind blew the glass; then there'll be no more Starr.

She unconsciously she voiced all the question around which all of her thoughts pivoted forgetting her repulsive and her presence. He was staring at her with his keen, restless eyes. Adversely appraising the level—Lance Marlows, was this a dream?

Starr was the old question—this of the game and the candle.

And then she awoke to a realization—Lance's presence. He was staring at her with his keen, restless eyes. Adversely appraising the level—Lance Marlows, was this a dream?

on. We just can't wait to be married, just that Mother and Father have finally given their consent—"

(She said that as though she and her blessed parents were doing a favor to Michael). . . . I'm coming on you to be one of my next guests, Michael. You have played such an important part in bringing about Michael's success. I want to see Michael's friends of share in our happiness."

Oh, no? That was too much! When Starr had ordered Michael out of her apartment, she had sworn to herself that she would never see him again. She could not bear to see his proud, contemptuous face. To know how much he was hating her, and how much she was hating him, was too much for her. But that was how life had always been to her—unfair.

It was not right to ask her to spend a week-end with Stephanie and Michael, watching them make love in secluded corners, constantly hearing all about their plans for their wedding.

Stephanie's supple blue eyes glared at Starr's dark, blue eyes. "What popular motif asked for is in the United States flag, though 50 per cent of its customers are Canadians and Europeans. Hearts and anchors are also popular, while an occasional client asks for a tombstone with a cross on top."

Lance had strolled up to the two, carrying his coat and hat. Just at that time he heard Stephanie urging Starr to be a guest at her house party. He had heard nothing of Michael's previous had to Starr. In spite of her remarks to Starr, too, it was quite obvious that Stephanie had no desire to see Starr. Starr's eyes glared at the eyes of the girl who had lost?

Lance had strolled up to the two, carrying his coat and hat. Just at that time he heard Stephanie urging Starr to be a guest at her house party. He had heard nothing of Michael's previous had to Starr. In spite of her remarks to Starr, too, it was quite obvious that Stephanie had no desire to see Starr. Starr's eyes glared at the eyes of the girl who had lost?

Proud Of His Work

Summer Is Busy Season For French-Canadian Trade Agents

The business of "Professor" Joe Laviole, French-Canadian trade agent, has gone to his head. As proof he has his hat and exhibits a likeness of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, famous Canadian minister, tattooed there.

Joe, exterior decorator of hundreds of saloons from ocean and lake boats, entering Montreal harbor, claims he is the only man in Canada with a tattooed neck.

Laviole is proud of his "masterpiece," which he has tattooed on his neck, he says, has traveled to the South Pole on the back of Richard Dickie, seaman on Admiral Byrd's second expedition to the Antarctic. Dickie now lives in Vancouver.

About the Neighbours

Somewhat once said it takes all kinds of people to make a world. Most of us agree they are all here. You may like all your neighbours and you may not. The point is, if not, WHY not?

Would you remain friendly with the man who told you one thing one day and the opposite the next? Would you prefer a neighbour who always lived up to his promises, to one who promised one thing one day and did something entirely different the next?

Would you lend your closest neighbour your binder or wagon if you had no reason to suppose he would ever return it? Or would you lend him your cold chisel if you knew he would tell all his friends he was the most unreasonable and most greedy person alive?

Do you think for a minute your community would be made more harmonious, a better place in which to live if everybody did the least they could, were as fair in their dealings with each other as you would have your neighbour be with you?

Is it not a marvelous feeling to know you can trust your neighbour? Is there any excuse your neighbour can possibly make that would pardon him in your own mind for suddenly disregarding all agreements or promises he ever made to you?

This statement is one of a series written by The Mortgage Lenders Association of the Province of Alberta. The Association is composed of 31 member companies. It represents hundreds of thousands of small investments by typical Canadians. Its total assets of Alberta amount to some forty-five million dollars.

Political Speaker: "I'm pleased to see such a dense crowd here tonight. Voice from the throng: 'Don't be too much pleased. We're not all dense.'"

A gardener met a coal merchant, who inquired how he was going on. "Oh, things are growing better," said the gardener. "I keep grubbing along. How are you doing?" "Things aren't so dusty," replied the coal merchant. "though it's a burning shame they're not better still."

WOMEN RECEIVE 80% OF LIFE INSURANCE BENEFITS

The women of Canada are the beneficiaries of over 20 per cent of all life insurance estates. Of over $4,000,000 paid out in death claims last year by life insurance companies operating in Canada, $32,000,000 went to the women of Canada to tide themselves and their families over periods of financial distress. It provided ready cash to meet pressing obligations during the difficult readjustment period. It supplied funds for food, clothing, shelter and other necessities of life. It provided money to pay the rent or to meet mortgage payments, and it gave to thousands of families a certain measure of financial security against the future. Legislation that impairs the security of life insurance investments—that arbitrarily reduces interest rates on securities and that repudiates public or private debt—is of vital interest to the women of Canada.

3,000 MILES OF HIGHWAY SANDED IN THREE HOURS

As part of the great system which enables the Province of Ontario to keep almost the entire network of Provincial highways open throughout the winter Ontario highway engineers have built up an organization capable of sanding 3,000 miles of highway within three hours after the need arises. Fast trucks, mechanical piles of abrasives have made this wonderfully efficient feat an accomplished fact. The materials used to make winter driving safe are sand, cinders, and stone chips, mixed with common salt. The salt prevents the stock piles from freezing and when

WEST BEGINS TO FEEL EFFECT OF AN INCREASED BUSINESS

Western Canada is "perkling up" considerably and agriculture, which is admittedly "the backbone of the nation" is beginning to wear a dress of brighter hues.

Instead of farmers' wheat staying in storage it is being sold and the money is travelling back through the regular channels to the farmers' pockets.

Latest government figures show the quantity of wheat in elevators and the U.S. lake ports on January 3, 1936 was over 260 million bushels. The comparable figure on November 27 was slightly in excess of 127 million bushels, the movement of wheat in that period representing the equivalent in cash sales of approximately $133,000,000 in less than eleven months.

Today wheat is around $1.50 a bushel. The increased purchasing power created by the steady advance in wheat prices is one of the contributing factors to the increased prosperity, according to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

INCOME TAX RETURNS SHOW INCREASE IN ALBERTA

EDMONTON—Reflecting the upward trend of economic conditions in this province and renewed confidence of the people in Alberta, income tax returns for the first eight months of the current fiscal year from April 1 to November 30, totalled $979,913.41 according to Hon. Chas. Giesbrecht, Provincial Treasurer and Acting Premier.

This represents a considerable increase over the total collections for the entire previous fiscal year, which amounted to $583,918.75.

Income tax collections are generally considered as one barometer by which the prosperity of the people can be gauged and the fact that there is such an increase this year is taken as an indication that money is considered more plentiful than a year ago.

CHEMISTRY AND AUTOMOBILES

The new 1937 automobiles are largely a product of chemical industry which can lay claim to having played some part in producing every kind of material that enters into production of the modern car. The exterior finishes, for instance, would not have been possible but for this industry. The chemist has replaced the old time heavy metals used in the engine with light, strong, rust-resisting alloys. The chemical industry has given the motorist his present high grade gasoline, put more mileage into his tires, supplied him with a durable, hard wearing upholstery, modern plastics for his dashboard and safety glass for his windows.

"Somebody to see you!"

IF EVERYBODY with something to interest you should come and ring your bell, what a nuisance it would be. Think of the swarming, jostling crowd, the stamping of feet on your porch and carpet!

Every week we know of many callers who come to see you. They never jangle the bell—they don't take up your whole day trying to get your attention. Instead, they do it in a way that is most considerate of your privacy and your convenience. They advertise in your newspaper!

In this way you have only to listen to those you know at a glance have something that interests you. They make it short, too, so you can gather quickly just what you want to know. You can receive and hear them all without noise or confusion in a very few minutes.

In fairness to yourself look over all the advertisements. The smallest and the largest—you never can be sure which one will tell something you really want to know.
